U. S. WEATHER BUREAU.

East Texas (Bryan) continued rains tonight or Sunday.

West Texas: Rain tonight or Sunday.

Oklahoma: Rain tonight or Sunday.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance reported central over the lower Rio Grande Valley on Thursday morning has increased in intensity, but has apparently made little progress. It will probably move northeastward and cause high to brisk winds on the coast; and storm warnings have been ordered displayed. The precipitation attending this disturbance has been heavy in Texas and the western cotton belt; and rain was still falling in Texas and Louisiana at time of report. The following heavy amounts of over two inches were reported from Texas points: Corsicana, 2.45; Waco, 2.34; Waxahachie, 2.13; Beeville, 5.25; Brownsville, 6.56; Corpus Christi, 3.53; Cuero, 4.86; Columbus, 4.85; Galveston, 4.30; and Rockland, 5.50.

Mission Weddings.

Within two minutes after the cab stopped at the mission door the report spread up and down the street that a wedding was taking place inside. Within another two minutes the room was packed to the very doors. That sudden rush of the crowd to the sanctuary pleased the mission superintendent.

"If I had money to spare," he said, "I would pay a bonus to young couples for getting married in a mission. The moral effect of one wedding is worth a dozen sermons. To get the best effect the ceremony ought to be performed in the middle of the service. No innovation that I have ever introduced has had such a sobering effect on the congregation. The example of a man once as far down in the social scale as themselves having become sufficiently regenerated to assume the responsibilities of life stirs every bit of manhood there is in them.

"The trouble is, I can persuade very few couples to be married in a mission. The bridegrooms do not mind, but the brides want something more exclusive."--New York Times.

Mrs. Peppy's Temper.

Being at supper my wife did say something that caused me to oppose her in. She used the word devil, which vexed me, and, among other things, I said I would not have her to use that word, upon which she took me up most scornfully, which, before Ashwell and the rest of the world, I know not nowadays how to check, as I would heretofore, for less than that would have made me strike her. So that I fear without great discretion I shall go near to lose, too, my command over her, and nothing do it more than giving her this occasion of dancing and other pleasures, whereby her mind is taken up from her business and finds other sweets besides pleasing of me, and so takes her that she begins not at all to take pleasure in me or study to please me as heretofore. -- Diary of Samuel Pepys.

Two Tales of Macready.

It is not always well to strut and fret one's little hour upon the stage too realistically. Macready, who threw himself into his acting heart and soul, used to tell funny stories about the effect of his easy, colloquial manner upon the players collected for his company in small provincial towns. Once in the play of "William Tell" he turned to one of these stupid rustics and put the question, "Do you shoot?" so naturally that the man was quite thrown off his guard and, to his horror, replied, "A little, sir, but I've never had a go with one of them cross-bows." Another time in "Virgilius" he asked, "Do you wait for me to lead Virginia in, or will you do so?" only to be greeted unexpectedly by the actor who played Iclilius with, "Why, really, sir, I don't care--just as you do it in London."

Paying For a Bride in Africa.

In most parts of Africa the native bridegroom has to pay the father of the bride in kind for his wife. In the case of a regular marriage the amount due to the father varies in accordance with the sex of the first child born, a girl being of less value than a boy. The payments consist of cattle, sheep, hoes, spears, perhaps, and sometimes other useful articles. The final payments are often not completed until years after the marriage takes place, and the bridegroom is considered fair prey by all the bride's relations. This results in endless disputes. Payments made are often repudiated by the recipient. The amount agreed upon is constantly matter for argument, and argument ends in fighting, raids on one another and sometimes a long drawn out feud.

Kingsley's Love For His Wife.

Even a brief holiday at the seaside was to Charles Kingsley too long an absence from his wife. "This place, 'tis perfect," he wrote on one occasion. "but it seems a dream and imperfect without you. Blessed be God for the rest, though I never before felt the loneliness of being without the beloved being whose every look and word and motion is the keynote of my life. People talk of love ending at the altar. Fools!"

English Fish Laws.

Fish, because of its tendency rapidly to decompose, holds a peculiar position among foods. In England it is the subject of a special act of parliament. So long ago as 1698 men knew the evil consequences resulting from eating mackerel of uncertain postmortem age, so they passed an act providing that except during the hours of divine service this fish could be sold on Sunday. That act has never been repealed.

All Full.

"Sister and brederen," said an old dorky in testimony meeting, "Ah jes' wants to git to hebban and squeese down into one of dem back seats."

"Nar, nar, brudder," said a deacon who had just come in; "dem back seats been full up long 'go."--Exchange.

What She Will Sometimes Admit.

"Does your wife ever admit that she is wrong in an argument?"

"No. The nearest she ever comes to it is to say that I'm not as big a chump as I look."--Detroit Free Press.

How He Stopped.

"How did the doctor persuade you to give up smoking?"

"Made his bill so big I couldn't afford to buy any more tobacco."--Milwaukee Sentinel.

We know books by reading them, horses by handling them, houses by living in them and men by trusting them.
